We are sorry to see that the Washington Organ undertakes to justify all the late doings of the citizens of Missouri in Kansas. That

Will Gen. Pierce employ the United States troops to thwart the will of the people of Kansas? We hope not. It is our judgment, that if he is nattempts to force Governor Reeder upon them, contrary to their will, and after they have repudiated him, they will resist. They will not be forced. They may or they may not throw him into the Missouri river; but we do not believe they will allow this administration to impose him upon them. All this may be wrong on the part of the Missourians. We are simplified the subject of the Missourians. on the part of the Missourians. We are simply dealing with facts and probabilities, and not discussing what is right or what is wrong, as between the Missourians and Governor Reeder. We desire to prevent civil war and fraternal bloodshed. Hence we say, that since the Missourians have literally expelled a Governor who was not only involved, &c.

So it is not the citizens of Kansas but "the Missourians" that are spoken of as having literally expelled Governor Reeder from Kansas" and as likely to take his life if he returns. The Organ speaks of the whole matter as an affair not between the citizens of Kansas and Gov. Reeder, but "between the Missourians and Gov. Reeder." 'The Organ thinks that the Missourians will not permit Gov. Reeder to be Governor of Kansas-that they may probably kill him if he again attempts to discharge the functions of the office; and the Organ has not a word of rebuke for the assumption, by Missourians, of the authority to determine, by the strong arm, who shall and who shall not hold office in Kansas. Audacity unparalleled seems approved rather than rebuked.

The editors of the New York Tribune repeat their charge that the Kentucky presses are afraid to speak of outrages on humanity when perpetrated against a slave. Those editors, if the are in their right minds, do not believe the charge themselves. Unless they have taken utter leave of their senses, they know that the Kentucky editors are not afraid to expose outrages upon slaves, and that there is no public sentiment in Kentucky which would condemn the exposure of such outrages or shield the perpetrators from exemplary punishment. Do those men think or try to think or pretend to think that the editors of Kentucky are afraid to denounce such cruelties perpetrated upon slaves as the free State editors would unsparingly denounce if perpetrated upon brute beasts, or, that the people of Kentucky would tolerate outrages upon colored human beings which a non-slaveholding community would not tolerate upon horses or oxen or dogs or cats? Do they imagine, in their abolition monomania, that the editors of the slaveholding States are all miserable poltroons, and that the mass of the citizens have the hearts of hyenas and tigers and devils? Have not they themselves seen newspaper expositions of outrages on slaves in slaveholding communities, and have they ever known such an epxosition punished by an outbreak of popular vengeance?

THE MASSACHUSETTS U. S. SENATORS .-While the Legislature of Massachusetts are enyed in framing laws designed to protect traitors and legalize treason, the U. S. Senators from the same State, Messrs. Sumner and Wilson, are going over the country like strolling mountebanks delivering incendiary and treasonable lectures to incipient traitors, who pay a time comes, he shall prove himself equal to the shilling a head for the privilege of hearing them inculcate hatred to the U.S. Constitution, and counsel resistance to the laws of Congress which they have sworn to defend and respect. It would be well for the nation if it had a Ulysses to scourge these vile disciples of Thersites through the land and send them howling out of per annum—the contractors agreeing to pay the a country they disgrace and a community whose salaries of the two street inspectors. It costs sense of decency they outrage.

CONFIRMATION .- In a book notice in our paper of Tuesday the religious rite of confirmation was spoken of in terms that some of our cil. The street committees are to report on it. readers no doubt disapprove. We did not see the notice till after its publication, but we are sure that the distinguished author cannot possibly have intended to speak lightly, in our columns, of a rite which millions of Christians consider not only important but sacred.

We learn that the Provisional Council of the Roman Catholic Church, held last week in Baltimore, determined upon the transfer of the Rt. Rev. Dr. McGill, of Richmond, Va., to the new See of Washington. Bishop McGill, we are in-formed, is a native of Pennsylvania, and a con-vert to the Roman Catholic religion. He is also reputed to be one of the most distinguished preachers of that denomination. The very Rev. H. B. Coskrey, of Baltimore, is to succeed Bishop McGill at Richmond.

National Intelligencer. Bishop McGill was for many years a resident of this city, and, if we are not mistaken, is a native of Kentucky. We don't think he has ever been a member of any other than the Catholic Church.

The spring has produced myriads of flowers, but has it called forth one more beautiful than this?

> [For the Louisville Bulletin.] SPRING.

BY MRS. ANNA MARIA FERGUSON. There are golden tints in the sombre sky, And the blustering winds breathe a softer sigh,
While streams, by the chains of the frost-king bound,
Have broken their bonds with a silvery sound;
The breath of young flowers at early morn
Sweet income of making to become is borne. Sweet incense of nature to heaven is borne, And we know by the brightness o'er earth that's east That the beautiful spring hath come at last.

She has come with rich treasures from nature's mine-She has come with rich treasures from nature's The balmy breeze and the glad sunshine, And blossoms with hues more pure and bright Than the ruby's glow or the emerald's light; And she strows with a lavish hand her wreath O'er the lowly glon and the sunny heath—By the cot of the peasant her bounties fail The same as by lordly tower and hall.

And man rejoices to hear once more Her voice ringing out o'er the earth's dim shore, For she brings him giad tidings of summer hours, Of gorgeous sunsets and rainbow showers, And she touches the heart 'tili from its strings The music of memory loudly rings, And the glowing hues that life's spring-time work Come back on the freshness and bloom of yore.

But say, oh spring, as thou roam'dst o'er earth Didst thou hear no murmurs save those of mirth? Did no wail from man's dwelling reach thine ear? Didst linger beside no loved one's bier? Didst thou miss no face from the joyous train
That welcomed thee back to thy wide domain?
Were the young with their rose-flushed checks all there? And the aged with meek brow and glance of care?

Didst thou miss not the light of some thoughtless eye That was ever turned to thy changing sky, To thy laughing rills and thy clear, blue streams, One's who lived in a world of fairy dreams, Who loved o'er flower and leaf to pore, 'Till the soul was filled with their mystic lore, A dreamer in whom the wind's wild tone Woke feelings to other hearts unknown

Didst thou miss not the music of bounding feet That were ever foremost thy steps to greet, Nor locks as the sunbeam's band unstrung O'er some snowy brow like a glory flung. Nor tones like the lute's voice soft and clear Whose every sound was a joy to hear, The young, the beauteous held unforgot In the homes left void—didst thou miss them not?

But why do we ask, sweet spring, of thee?
Thou hast come to the flower, the bird, the tree,
Thou canst bring back the rose In its biushing pride,
And violets down in the vale that died Can each atom quicken with life and love. Save the holy dust we have wept above;
The flowers that spring 'neath the heart's sunshine
Thou eanst not bring back, for they were not thine.

Nor the hopes, oh spring, from our bosom gone, Nor the faith and truth that were trampled on, Nor the love we cherished than life far more Whose light once perished, life's life is o'er, Nor the young fresh feelings affection nursed That a cold world chilled by its breathings first, Nor our youth's bright promise believed in vain, To our being, Spring, eanst thou give again

Yet we love thee, Spring, with thy smiles and tears, Like the human heart with its hopes and fears, One moment bright with the joy that burned, The next that joy into sadness turned, For a spell is thine like some wizard thing That to mind as to magic-glass doth bring The smiling faces and sunbright eyes O'er which the sod of the greensward lies.

There are voices, too, oh fair spring-time In thy whispering leaves, in thy water's chime, Of a clime that breathe than this brighter far Where the loving, loved, and the lovely are, Where the spirit quenches its burning dream Of the Ideal sought for by life's dim stream. And immortals over death's pain and sting Than earth's children welco

THE FUGITIVE SLAVE LAW IN MASSACHU-SETTS.—The telegraph brings news that the disgraceful anti-fugitive slave law bill, recently passed by the Massachusetts Senate, has now passed the House of Representatives. We wish that Governor Gardner, who has won almost a national reputation by his refusal to remove Judge Loring from office, would put his veto upon this iniquitous bill to annul the fugitive slave law, but we do not expect that he will do it, and, if he were to do it, the Legislature would undoubtedly carry the bill over his head.

We have not a copy of this bill before us, but we can say of it that it embodies the principle of downright nullification. We have not examined it sufficiently to feel qualified to say how far Massachusetts proposes, in carrying out this nullification, to come into direct conflict with the provisions of the law of Congress, but we do earnestly hope, that the time may soon come when she will have an opportunity for action under the bill which her Legislature has just passed, and we can forgive President Pierce for a thousand sins and iniquities, if, when that

THE STREET SWEEPING MACHINE. - Messrs. Smith, Seckel, & Co. submitted through the Mayor a proposition to the council last evening to keep the streets of the city clean at $15,000 the city now about that sum, but the streets are not kept clean. We are glad to see that the proposition of Messrs. S., S., & Co. is favorably regarded by the Mayor as also by the coun-

RUMORED DEFEAT OF THE ALLIES .- The N. Y. Journal of Commerce, of Tuesday evening, notices in its money article a great depression in the stock market, and assigns as a reason for it:

There has been for several days a rumor that our Government at Washington received some special European advices, by the last steamer, not generally made public. This rumor has now put on a tangible shape, and the news is reported to contain the announcement that the Allies had assaulted September and because when the steamer that the Allies and the same treatment of the steamer than the same treatment of the steamer than the same treatment of the steamer than the same treatment of the same treatment o had assaulted Sebastopol, and been repulsed with a loss of 40,000 men. This is ghost quite sufficient to terrify stock operators, and this is said to be the cause of the decline to-day.

The same paper has the following:

A large portion of the receipts of specie per Illinois consisted of bars and California private coins, which will be shipped without passing through our assay office.

The Atlantic for to morrow has already $1,-462,000 in specie engaged, and the shipment will probably exceed half a million.

MEETING OF THE GENERAL COUNCIL .- At | the sessson of this body last evening, Mayor | Cincinnati Times says: Barbee recommended that a new floor be placed upon the Third street suspension bridge at a cost not exceeding $300.

The Mayor further recommended that the engine house now occupied by the American Eagle Fire Company be altered at an expense not exceeding $500, for the use of the Steam Fire Engine, in view of the fact that the finances of the city will not justify a larger outlay this year. The Mayor suggested that economy must be used, and the house alluded to, at a small expense, can amply suit the purpose.

An unusual amount of business was presented from the Mayor's department. Some of the business he presented was a proposition from Messrs. Smith, Seckel, Stivel, & Co. to clean all the streets, lanes, and alleys in the city of Louisville for $15,000 per annum, and pay the for this port, Messrs. Haldeman and Guthrie salaries of the street inspectors. It was referred to the street committee.

The outrage perpetrated on the apparatus of the Hook and Ladder company was also presented; also, a recommendation that the contract with the Gas company for lighting street lamps be renewed.

The Mayor recommended Ratcliffe and Pewell, supernumerary watchmen, as watchmen for the wharf.

An ordinance authorizing the issuing of $150,000 in bonds for the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, $75,000 to be payable out of the railroad taxes of 1856 and $75,000 out of the taxes of 1857, passed both boards.

An ordinance organizing the engineer's department, allowing him one assistant, passed both boards.

An ordinance to change the grade of High street and Portland avenue, according to the engineer's instructions, was passed.

A resolution in regard to the Portland wharf and sewer was referred.

Ordinances to pave the sidewalks on the north side of Broadway, from First to Floyd, and to grade Floyd, from Chestnut to Broadway, were passed.

A petition from some barbers who are in want of customers to enforce the Sunday ordinance was referred to Messrs. Raphael, Beatty, and Dunlap.

The board of Councilmen passed resolutions to grade the alley between Brook and First and Broadway and Chestnut, the alley between Brook and Floyd and Gray and Broadway, Franklin street, between Shelby and Campbell, and Campbell street, between Marshall and Wal-

Resolutions to repave and recurb the gutter on Second street, between Green and Walnut, and to repair the alley between Eighth and Ninth and Market and Jefferson streets, were passed.

The board of councilmen rejected the resolution appropriating $2,000 for the erection of a town-clock on the Baptist church.

The ordinance in regard to water works was referred in the board of councilmen.

The board of councilmen refused to concur in the amendment of the board of aldermen to the printing ordinance, authorizing the publication of the proceedings in two papers, and brevier type to be counted nonpareil. It was referred to the revision committee in the board of aldermen

A resolution authorizing a loan of $10,000 to pay accounts due was passed by the board of councilmen.

IMPORTANT MILITARY INTELLIGENCE. -The

Our sister city Newport, seems likely to become the head-quarters of the U.S. standing army. Orders, we understand, have been received at the barracks to prepare for three hundred additional troops, who are about to be brought from St. Louis, to escape the effects of the cholera, which has already appeared in that latitude. The commanding officer of the barracks has also received instructions to negotiate for a spot of ground to be used the coming summer as a military encampment sufficiently large to accommodate a thousand men and a thousand

IMPORTANT TO STEAMBOAT MEN-Decision in a Collision Case—Suspension of Pilots, etc.— It will be remembered that on January 5th a collision took place between the steamers J. C. Fremont and Switzerland, near Vevay, Indiana. Since then, at the request of John Sho the pilots on the Fremont, the Local Inspectors have been engaged in taking depositions and hearing evidence, and yesterday they made their decision. They found the testimony very con-flicting, as is usual in all cases of collision, but from the examination of witnesses, they arrived at the following conclusion:

at the following conclusion:

1st. The witnesses on both sides agree that it was a clear, starlightnight; that the boats were distinctly seen one mile apart, and that the river was half a mile wide at the place of collision, and sufficient depth of water to float either boat in that space. Neither pilots stopped or backed the engines until a collision was certainly unathe engines until a collision was certainly unavoidable.

2d. On the part of the Switzerland, the testimony shows that boat to be descending the river, with a barge in tow. Joseph McCammont the pilot on duty at the time, blowed the steam whistle twice, the signal for the starboard side, but could hear no answer; this signal was re-peated, and was answered by one whistle from the J. C. Fremont, at which time, according to the evidence of both, the boats were within two lengths of each other, and both contending for and not more than thirty yards from the Ken-

3. On the part of the J. C. Fremont the testimony shows that boat to be ascending the river, John Shouse the pilot on duty. Having left the wharfboat at Vevay, Indiana, immediately crossed over to the Kentucky shore, after which he tapped his bell once for the starboard, and heard the whistle once from the Switzerland in answer; this was repeated, and in return the whistle of the J. C. Fremont was blown once, and then the engines were stopped and backod, but too late to prevent the collision.

They find that John Shouse, pilot of the J. C. Fremont, was on or near the Kentucky shore, which was the proper place for him to be, and that he was entitled to the shore, but was to blame for not giving the signals with the steam whistle in place of the bell, and for this neglect of duty the inspectors suspend his license for 30 days. They made it light because the accident occurred only five days after the law redent occurred only five days after the law requiring the steam whistle to be blown went into peration.

They find that Joseph McCammont was to blame in running so close to that shore, say 50 yards, where the usual channel is about 300 rards from it, with sufficient depth of water in by-part of the river, he was wrong in not stopa by-part of the river, he was wrong innot sup-ping his engine after giving the signat the first time, while he got an answer from the other boat. This, and in view of his having on two former occasions similar, caused the loss of steamboats, they suspend his license for six months. The inspectors insist upon it, that no collision has taken place where the pilot rules collision has taken place where the pilot rules and regulations have been fairly carried out. This law has accomplished almost perfect security to life for explosions, and heavy penalties will be imposed in all cases of collision until comparative safety is made effective. The inspectors have notified the collector of customs of their action as above stated.

Judge Ingersoll's Per Diem-A" Fast" Judge. Our astonishment at the recent decision of the Judge in the Kinney and Fabens case has vanished already, insomuch as we hear to-day that he has sent in bills to the accounting officer of the government for his personal expenses in holding the U.S. District Court in New York (his own district being Connecticut) allowing holding the U. S. District Court in New York (his own district being Connecticut), allowing himself at the rate of some $18 per diem. He is evidently a very "fast" liver, at the expense of Uncle Sam, and probably sympathizes with "fast men" rather than with the well-being of society. Judge Hall's bill for holding court in New York city, though traveling much further to reach there, amounted to less than one-fourth per diem of the amount charged by this apparent pro-fillibustering Judge.—Wash. India Rubber Cotton Floats .- An experiment was yesterday made, at the foot of Wall street, with the new "cotton float" (designed for carrying cotton from the interior to the seaboard in sballow streams) invented by Mr. Griffith, of Mobile, and of which we have already spoken. It appeared to be in every respect successful.
We learn from Mr. Griffith that he is now having some of these floats manufactured at the Union India Rubber Works in this city, with which he will start South this week, and test them speedily. If they answer the purpose of getting down cotton in low water, the whole crop can be got to market this summer. The receipts of cotton at all the ports are said to be very near 300,000 bales short of last year, it having been kept back by the low state of the rivers. It is claimed that at the price of freights which has been paid for cotton from Columbus and Aberdeen, one trip with the floats would pay for themselves, and the expense of taking them down. They will cost about $12 50 each, together with a good gum elastic covering for the top of the cotton.—N. Y. Jour. of Com.

FRIDAY EVENING, MAY 18, 1855.

CHICAGO AND ITS RAILROAD CONNECTIONS-ITS PRESENT CONDITION AND FUTURE PROS-PECTS .- In this great country of ours, where villages grow to be towns, and towns expand into cities, in most wonderfully brief periods of time, we know of no city whose growth has been more astonishingly rapid than that of Chicago. A quarter of a century has not yet elapsed since the site of the present city of Chicago, together with all the surrounding country, was a wilderness, over which fierce savages roamed in unmolested supremacy. Now it has a population of seventy thousand souls of another and a more vigorous race-people who profess Christianity, and who are engaged in the arts of peace and the spread of civilization. The growth of Chicago was not very rapid until recently. It sprang into existence during the great speculating era of 1833-'36, and was then regarded as one of the most promising town-sites in all the northwest. Population flowed into it for a while very fast, and lots sold at extravagant prices. But the financial crash of 1837 put an end to the speculations, and prices fell without the ability to sell lots even at extreme low rates; there were no emigrants to it, and of course no buyers. In this condition Chicago continued to languish for many years. In 1840 it had less than five thousand inhabitants; in 1850 it had increased its population to 29,963 souls; in 1853 the population reached 60,000; at present it is supposed to be about 70,000. The second growth of Chicago dates from the period when the people of New York began to extend their railroads along the lake shore through that city to the Mississippi river. Every road that the capitalists of New York projected West, either terminated at or passed through Chicago. This great prominent fact directed the attention of people to that point, and gave an impulse to speculation in that direction, that has had the effect to more than double the population of the city in five years, while the price of lots in and lands adjacent to the town has increased ten-fold. As the growth of Chicago commenced with the construction of the railroads to it, and proceeded pari passu with their progress and completion, its dependence for a continuance of its present prosperity upon the business of these roads is too manifest to require arguments or illustration. As the railroads have brought the travel and trade through and than to any other State; Massachusetts, the next built up the city, so may a diversion of these roads remove the trade and travel and thus retard, if not stop entirely, its growth. West of Chicago, there are now eight railroads that pour a daily flood of passengers into that city. East of it, there are only two railroads to take these passengers to New York and points intermediate. These two roads are the Central Michigan and the Southern Michigan. It will be perceived that one of these companies has already begun the work of diverting business from Chicago as the following notice which we clip from the St. Louis Republican will show:

Michigan Central Railroad.—This company have made a connection at Joliet with the Chicago and Mississippi Railroad, by constructing a road from Lake Station, 36 miles east of Chicago, to Joliet, a distance of 44 miles west of Chicago, which must facilitate the transit of freight and passengers very much. As the guages of the three roads between Detroit and Alton are the same, a train may be loaded in Detroit and run through to Alton without changing, saving from three to six days delay, which occurs with goods sent to Chicago, and there stored and re-shipped. Passengers, not having business in Chic-go, must have this new facility, as they can now take this cut-off, and by the time passengers going via Chicago would be ready to leave Chicago, they would be two hours or more in advance for the East—the connections are now complete, with no detention, over the great Central route via Detroit, Niagara Falls or Ruffalo, to all points East. The suspension bridge being completed closes the last gap between the West and East.

must be observed, not only that the road to Al-Island road and its numerous connections pass and connect at that place; so that, in effect, any Louis that desires to go to New York in the shortest time, and with the least expense, need pass south of it. The Michigan Central railroad, in forming this connection with the network of roads that concenter at Joliet, has to cross the Chicago branch of the Illinois Central railroad; and the main stem of that road unites with the Chicago and Mississippi road near Bloomington, Thus nearly every railroad that now enters Chicago from the West, and every one that approaches it from the South, will be tapped by this extension of the Michigan Central road to Joliet. The effect of this extension will be to divert business from Chicago, because it will no longer be necessary for passengers to lose time or expend money in passing through that city.

This movement by the Central Michigan railroad company will render it necessary that the Southern Michigan company shall make a similar extension, so as to form connections with the roads south and west of Chicago. If this company fails to do so, the Michigan Central road will monopolize nearly all the Western through business to New York. We therefore regard it as absolutely certain that this extension will be made: and, when it is, the injurious effect of it upon the business of Chicago will be made apparent, and the extent of the injury will be disastrous. Nor is this the only way in which trade and travel will be diverted from Chicago. At present all the passengers and light goods going to and from St. Louis and Southern Illinois pass through Chicago on their way to and from New York, but, when the Alton and Terre Haute railroad and the Ohio and Mississippi road are completed, the whole of the business from St. Louis, Alton, and all Southern Illinois will pass over these roads on its way East for the better is indeed gratifying.

and West, instead of taking the round-about way through Chicago.

Another diversion of trade and travel that now passes through Chicago will be effected by the completion of the canal around the falls of Lake Superior at the Sault of St. Mary. This canal is completed, and, as steamboats can by this route transport freight and passengers from Buffalo to Fond-du-Lac at the foot of Lake Superior as cheap and as quick as they are now conveyed by boat from Buffalo to Chicago, all or most of the business of Minnesota that now passes through Chicago will hereafter go by the Lake Superior route. The projected railway frem Fond-du-Lac to St. Paul will, when completed, render this a most cheap, facile, and greeable route, while navigation is open.

Without intending to detract from the impor ance of Chicago as a great commercial point, we have submitted these remarks as a caution to those of our citizens who have the prevailing mania for speculating in Chicago lots, as we know that some of them have. It will be well for such persons not to be dazzled by the transactions of the past few years, but to regard with attention the prospects for the future. Scrutinize the works and the plans of the various railroad companies, and examine into the probable effect on the business of the city that will result from the construction of new roads. or the changes now making or that will be made in those that are already built. It will be safe to regard it as a settled fact that Chicago, like any other way place, can command and retain only the business of the country that immediately surrounds her. There is in this country no tendency to centralization (except perhaps in the city of New York), and Chicago is not an exception to the general rule. Furthermore, no interior city can ever attain to great size and population by commerce alone; it must become manufacturing city before its population becomes very dense. In this respect Chicago does not bid fair to rival either Cincinnati or St. Louis.

STATISTICS OF PATENTS ISSUED FROM THE U. S. PATENT OFFICE IN 1853.—From a tabular statement of the patents issued during the year 1853 we gather the following facts:

There were 845 patents issued, together with 12 extensions, 3 additional improvements, 24 reissues, and 75 designs, making a grand total of 959. Of the number issued, 25 were to citizens of foreign countries. The distribution among the States gives New York 250, a larger number highest, 135; Pennsylvania, 115. These 3 States received more than half of the whole number issued. Alabama, Wisconsin, California, and Texas received each 1. Delaware and Arkansas received none. Kentucky received 8. The eleven Southern States received in all 68; the Northern States claim 752. The whole number issued is classified under 16 different heads; of these, 118 are set down to agriculture, and, with the exception of 93 to metallurgy and manufacture of metals and instruments therefor, are more than double that of any other class. This is an encouraging fact for the American farmer, when he considers that so large a share of the inventive powers of our countrymen is exercised for the modification of the labor and the advancement of the interests of that department of industry.

Forty years ago there was scarcely an improved farm implement worthy of a patent. It is but recently that the mowing machine was introduced to relieve the husbandman from the most laborious of all the work upon the farm, accomplishing the labor of ten men; when the reaping machine was substituted for the slow and tedious method of harvesting with the sickle and the cradle; when the horse-power and threshing machine took the place of the hand flail and the slovenly practice of "treading out the corn;" when, with the improved horse-rake, the farmer was enabled to gather more hay in one hour than two men, with the To understand the effect of this movement, it old hand-rake, could in a day; and when the old triangular frame with its rows of hickory ton terminates at Joliet, but also that the Rock pins yielded its place to the hinged harrow, with its neatly wrought steel teeth. It was but as yesterday that Jethro Wood was ridiculed one living west of Joliet from Galena to St. by the world for daring to substitute metal for the old rude, wooden mold-board to the plow, by which, with the improvements of the present not and will not pass through Chicago; he will day, a furrow of 8 by 16 inches can be turned with more ease than one could of half that size before these improvements were made.

In addition to these there is almost an endless variety of inventions and improvements which have come in to aid the farmer, from the steam engine to the apple-parer.

NEWS ITEMS.

Arkansas .- Col. C. F. M. Noland has tendered to the Governor his resignation of the office of Swamp Land Commissioner, to take effect on the 29th inst.

We learn from the Vicksburg Sentinel of the 8th inst. that a serious difficulty occurred in that city on the day previous between Mr. Mc-Coy and Dr Washington Rossman, in which the latter was seriously though it is thought not fatally wounded. After an examination before his honor, the Mayor, the former gentleman was discharged.

Action of the Illinois Central Railroad Compa ny .- In all parts of Illinois the belief that the New England emigrants will be swept out of Kansas by the mob of armed men who have sworn to plant slavery in the territory, is so strong that the Illinois Central Railroad is influenced by it to send an agent to Kansas for the purpose of inducing those emigrants to move to the company's lands in that Statel The agent, a prominent and influential citizen of Southern Illinois, left Chicago on Monday evening last, and will proceed to Kansas without delay.

LATER FROM UTAH TERRITORY.—Salt Lake City papers to the 28th of March are received. The death of Capt. Wm. May, a well-known nountaineer and trapper, and chief guide to Col. Steptoe's command, took place in the military hospital of Salt Lake City, on the 28th of Fabruary.

The News speaks of the refusal of Col. Step toe to accept the office of Governor of Utah Territory, and bestows upon him many flattering compliments:

We have found him to be in every particular an intelligent, honorable, and upright officer, citizen and gentleman. It was this fact, coupled with his knowledge of the unanimous wishes of all our population for the re-appointment of Gov. Young, with his having signed a petition to the President and Congress to that effect, with his familiarity with the illiberality of such appointments, and with the certainty of having resign an elevated and highly honorable position in the army to serve but two years as Governor, where the united voice preferred Gov Young to all others, which, doubtless, move him to refuse to accept the appointment.

There were 27 deaths at Memphis for the week ending on the 12th, of which 17 were cholera. The secretary of the Board of Health says in his report:

This fell disease [cholera] made a sudden outbreak in the upper portion of the city about the first of the week, and proved fatal in almost ev-

THE ANTI-TELEGRAPHERS-SUPERSTITION We noticed some time since that the people along the line of the Nashville and New Orleans Telegraph, under the belief that the wires caused the drouth, were pulling them down miles at a time. We learn from the Tuscumbia North Alabamian that these "heathen" are not disposed to give over their notions. They have al ready caused large damage to the company and great inconvenience to the public, and all at-tempts to quiet them have heretofore been fruit-The following truly characteristic proclamation was found by the men engaged in putting up the wire at a place near the line of Marion county, where it had been torn down. We give it verbatim:

The State of Alabama) this the 5 of May 1855

Marion county 5 Notice to the Mans gers of the Tellegraft Ware you ar hereby forwarned to not to put up the ware any more for it shal not Stay up any more long at a time if you do not let it stay down the hole country is going to Just go before your Eyes and tare it down and cut the post and throw a way the glasses and throw a way the ware and skin the first man sais any thing A gainst it and throw his hide a crows A pole and

Jump up John the Wolf ketcher This is just about such a document as might be expected from a people who believe that the telegraph prevents rain. One of the builders of this line tells an anecdote of an old lady, who is now prominent among the believers Our informant says that when new theory. they were putting up the wire, eight years ago, opposite the dwelling of the old lady referred she came out and insisted that they should put it further from the house—for, says she, "Supposin thar should be awar, and they should be sendin' cannons and bombs along the telegraft, and they should bust right here and tare everything all to pieces; I should like to know who's a gwine to pay for it? Take it away off than; for I don't like the pesky thing no how!"

This is probably the same old lady who is ready to swear, that during the drought of last summer she frequently saw the clouds "gather over the telegraft wire and bile for half an hour, trying their best to rain! but had to give it up at last."

The question of "telegraph" or "no telegraph" is assuming considerable importance among our Alabama neighbors, and, the candidates for the Legislature are called out upon it. It is currently reported, and by some believed, that at least one gentleman holding a seat in the State Senate believes that the telegraph "won't let it rain!"-Nash. Whig.

Agricultural Division of the Patent Office-Paraguay Tea.—There was lately procured by Lieutenant Page, of the United States ship Water Witch, which is now engaged in ex-ploring the sources of the river Platte, in South America, for distribution, the celebrated mate Paraguay tea. The leaves of this plant are used, by infusion, in Paraguay, Uraguay, the Argentine republic, Chili, Peru, and Ecuador, by all classes of persons, and at all hours of the day. The creoles drink the infusion in a pot called mate, from the spout of which the tea is drunk, with or without a little burnt sugar, cin namon, or lemon juice. They drink it at every meal, and seldom eat before they have taken some of it. The more wealthy and refined portion of the population partake of the infusior from a mate or teapot, formed of silver or other material, by means of a tin or silver pipe, called bombilla, perforated with holes at one end, to prevent swallowing the pulverized herb which floats on the surface. The quantity of leaves used by a person who is fond of it is an ounce. It is customary, in good society, to supply each of the party with a mate and pipe, with the infusion as near as possible to a boiling temperature, which those who are habituated to its use can swallow without inconvenience, but ofter the whole household and their visitors are supplied by handing the mate from one to another, filling it up with hot water as fast as it becomes exhausted. If the water is suffered to remain long on the leaves, the decoction becomes of an inky blackness. The taste of the leaves, when green, somewhat resembles that of mallows, or the inferior kinds of green tea from China. The people of South America attribute innumerable virtues to this tree; but most of the merable virtues to this tree; but most of the qualities ascribed to it are doubtful. It is certainly aperient and diuretic, and, like opium produces some singular and contrary effects. It is said to give sleep to the restless and spirit to the torpid; and, like that drug, when a habit is once contracted of using it, it is difficult to leave it off; its effects on the constitution being similar to that produced by an immoderate use of spirituous liquors. The tree is highly orna-mental, and doubtless would flourish in any soil and situation where the magnol a grandifiora would thrive. Hence its introduction into the niddle and southern sections of the Union is well worthy the attention of all who have proper conveniences for cultivating it.

THE undersigned will prepare claims for Bonnty Land or Pensions nader any of the acts of Congress. He will also buy and sell Land Warrauts. ISHAM HENDERSON. Lonisville Jonraal Office. May 8, 1855—jžbtfst

New Book.

This Constite Builders, by the anthor of "Hearts' Ease," "The Heir of Redellife," &c. D. Appieton & Co. New York. A simple but beautiful story, told in a simple and beautiful manner. The author studiously avoids all forced and nunatural incidents, and the equally fashionable affectation of extrawagant inguage. It is destined to great popularity among all classes of readers, for its sketches of life seem to us at once lively, spirited, pathetic, as well us graceful and vivid. All who read it will become interested in its fascinating pages, and close it with the impression that it is a good book, and deserving of universal popularity.
